SATURDAY, DECEMBER 5, 1863.

THE MONTEVIDEAN BUSINESS

Yesterday the peaceable portion of the Buenos Ayres community was startled by the almost incredible news which the Libertad brought us. Nonsuits, five passengers, and running with all steam on to escape the bulls of the Oriental guns, the Libertad entered the port fairly out of breath.

Down on the Mole the excitement was such that some half dozen or more fell down through the hole, not minding where they were going. As a matter of course the city was full of all kinds of rumours, but so far as we have been able to learn the facts, they are as follows:—On Thursday evening the captain of the Libertad heard some strange stories on shore, and thought the best thing he could do would be to go on board at once.

Accordingly, he went to see the Argentine Metternich, Marmol, who he found quite cool and calm. The Plenipotentiary gave the captain his despatches, and told him to return at once, and to allow nothing to stop him. Off went the captain with a bundle of despatches longer than the law papers in the Forbes suit in the Admiralty. Several people, seeing the captain with such an enormous bundle, thought there was something going wrong. When he got on board, he discovered that some trifling accident had occurred which he had to set about repairing. Meanwhile the passengers kept arriving, and finally an officer from the captain of the port (but not the visit), who politely informed him that he was ordered to put his vessel alongside the guardship. The captain saw he was in a fix, but remembering the injunctions of the Plenipotentiary, determined to hit his part. He said to the officer "all right," although he himself thought it was all wrong. The passengers received orders to disembark, and the new cofragcous son of Albion complied; this gentleman was at his dinner when the order came, and he determined to finish it first!

If the Oriental gunners were good for anything, that dinner would have been the last in this world. The captain having cleared away the ropes, &c., put on steam, and dodged about apparently with the intention of complying with his orders, but when all right he steered right out of port. Bang—bang—bang—shot after shot; but the Libertad never heeded, although the people on board were not so. One good shot would have driven a hole in her side, and then God help the captain and all on board. But "God knows best, we all know the rest. The captain had the pluck to face everything, and although the passengers of the 33 and other vessels in hot pursuit disturbed their slumbers during the night, the Libertad came safe and sound into port yesterday morning.

The only news we can learn is that Flores and Medina have not fought, and that Mitre is expected hog and baggage this morning.

Lucas Moreno, it is said, has returned with his troops to Montevideo, but nobody knows anything about Rivera.

There are three 'Reformas' in town price $2 50 each.

Mr. George Kean has put on a boat which will leave to-day for Montevideo. (See advertisement.)

THE INDIANS.

The public attention is at present so concentrated upon the fortifications at Martin Garcia and the hide-and-go-seek warfare of Messrs. Flores and Medina, that people lose sight of dangers more immediately concerning us, and the savage availing himself of our indiscretions, makes the most frightful inroads.

Our readers will no doubt believe that when we speak of an Indian invasion we refer to some province bordering on the Gran Chaco, or some unknown provincial territories, in the locality of Cape Horn, but we regret sincerely to say the danger is much more imminent, the Indian is within a day's journey of Buenos Ayres.

Only the other day we noticed the departure of several Indians with their flocks of sheep for a place called the 25th de Mayo.

The Government has been recently receiving a good deal of money from our fellow countrymen for lands in that parish. These purchasers are now driving their sheep out, in full confidence that a Government which is able to take such energetic measures on behalf of citizens abroad is more than enough for enemies at home.

Yet notwithstanding that thousands of pounds from this city we have our generals and our military planning an Argentine flag in the very hotbeds of rebellion, although every second whale boat that leaves the mole head, takes cannon and soldiers and ammunition to the paving stone depository of Buenos Ayres, the camps of this Province are invaded, and we may say desolated by the Tomahawk.

Within two leagues of the very town of the 25th de Mayo, at the estancia of one Ramon Borsles, the Indians have appeared. We think it right to say that some of the Guardia Nacional officers assisted by the neighbours, had the courage to attack the savages in force, and after killing three or four of the savages took one prisoner, who was immediately remitted to Colonel Vedia. The neighbours mustered some fifty strong, and were well mounted, but owing to the excessive heat the horses tired soon, and they were unable to follow up the pursuit. Three of the party were badly wounded. The number of the invading Indians is put down at one hundred and twenty, and it is said they were headed by an Indian well known called Juan Pintin, who rebelled in the year 1856 with the Indian Cristo. The Indians carried away, notwithstanding all the exertions of the neighbours, a large number of cows and horses, but it appears that afterwards, through the exertions of Colonel Vedia and his men, the mares were got back.

We have no fault to find with the Government officers and soldiers, they did their best, but are we to be for ever living under the bugbear of an Indian invasion? Is there no possible means of approaching these Indians? convincing them of the truths of Christianity, and by supplying their trifling wants, stopping these repeated dangers?

Mr. Bliss, the Government agent, who has seen and conversed with many of these savages, tells us in his report, that they only ask from the Christians the most trifling assistance to live on, and that if this is granted them they will never trouble us.

Is it fair for us to say, that, as we subsidise the provinces, why not also subsidize the Indians?

We venture to assert that if only one-third of what the Government received for those identical lands, which the savage has just laid desolate, were applied towards purchasing presents for these Indians, we should never again be troubled by them. We ask, why has not Mr. Bliss' suggestion on this subject been carried into effect? They have not missionaries been sent out, with Indian agents to conciliate them? We shall answer our own question, because Mr. Bliss is neither priest nor minister as a visionary, and our ideas on such a subject are not consulted; but time will yet tell all. When President Mitre finds that the cows in this province are being swept off by thousands, when millions of money have been spent in emptying the coffers of enemy which is unconquered and almost unconquerable, he will at last find out his mistake. If we are to overcome the Indians, we must attack them with cotton handkerchiefs rather than cannon balls; we must see that the minister of the Gospel gets amongst them and converts them from their errors. In former years such was done, and found successful, but now a savage is totally different people, and the popular opinion rules everywhere, the Indians cannot be dealt with and must be exterminated.

THE 'STANDARD' ABROAD.

SCENERY OF THE PARANA.

Bella Vista, Nov. 27th, 1863.

It will be remarked that I am always a chapter behind in my letters, but this is, because, during the day's voyage, I have time for little more than taking notes of the principal features. In my last I arrived at Esquina, the first town in Corrientine territory, going up in the river, and I will proceed to give some details of the some as reported to me.

Esquina is a well-built town of 1200 to 1500 inhabitants, situate on an eminence at a bend of the river Corrientes, near its confluence with the Parana. It possesses a good church, public schools, juzgado and other offices, extending along the crest of the hill for about a mile, most of the houses being adobe, with wide verandahs for shelter against the rays of an almost tropical sun. The surrounding country is remarkable for its excellent pasture, and the inhabitants are wealthy cattle-breeders, sheep being comparatively few. Mr. Hayes, an American merchant, is the only notable foreign resident in the town.

This gentleman has lived here nearly 9 years, having married a native lady. His children educated in the United States and has a dry goods store, the father being temporarily absent on a visit to his native country: his brother was for some years a druggist in Buenos Ayres. In the year 1838 Mr. Hayes killed a serpent which measured 22 feet in length and 18 inches in circumference, and on opening the monster, three hens seemingly uninjured were found in his stomach: he sent the skin to the Smithsonian, where it was stuffed, and is still to be seen. The bite of these reptiles is not fatal, as elsewhere I will give a proof. No French fellow-passenger was one day sleeping siesta, when he felt the sting, of what he thought an insect, on his wrist. Getting up he found a snake coiled round the foot of his stretcher-bed, and immediately killed him. Then squeezing the part affected till it bled he tested a knife and sucked the wound, after which he suffered no inconvenience.

Among the notable curiosities is Mr. Schwitzer, late proprietor of the Europa hotel, Buenos Ayres, who bought out the establishment of a native widow, and is now the happy head of horned cattle: he acquired the transfer of a squatter's right (usufructo) to a mere trifle, paying a nominal rent to Government, the area of which land is 4,000 silver dollars per square league. There is an abundance of tigers about here, and some years ago a washer woman was devoured on the river. The custom-house or Capitania is a small wooden hut elevated on poles ten feet above the water's edge, and half a league distant from the town. The warehead officer, notwithstanding the proximity of timber cost the State no less than 1,000 silver dollars, and could so rarely that sometimes no officials visit the place for several days. It happened some time back that a priest was left here by the Paraguay steamer one evening and being unable to thread his way through the thickets and cross rivulets overhead, he spent the night here. Some hungry tigers poor hungry beast smelled of human flesh and ancilegously resolved to make a meal of the revelend Padre, but the latter, who was scrambled up on the roof, and sat on this unpleasant saddle of tiles until daybreak. As there was no steamer expected to arrive the next day, a small boat did not come down the arroyo hard by, and one of the wild beasts kept watch below, lest the holy gentleman might be driven by hunger to run the gauntlet and make towards town. In this manner the poor priest passed two days and nights, awful days and he was relieved from his perilous post. The Paraguay steamers expose passengers in this dangerous landing them at the nearest point of land: a Frenchman was left at some distance from Parana, at nightfall, and being unable to reach the town had to lay down for the night to keep off the tigers, and thus pass the night.

The 'Isla's' or customs boat came alongside with four passengers: it is a small gig manned by four stalwart Correntines in white duck uniforms, wearing swords, and caps with the motto Sub-delegacion de Esquina. Two small schooners were lying in the little creek, and a few light canoes are paddled about by natives, which the boat however soon passed. It is a pretty little but a quarter of an hour, to take in the passengers: one of these is Mr. Victor Gonnet, Sub-delegado, collector of taxes in Corrientes, who came down to assist at the burial of his brother who died suddenly. This gentleman has given me much information relative to the ton-planting, as he was the person encharged by Government to distribute the land. Mr. Mitre, being a Corrientino, whose father (Scotch) served under Paz, resolved, is going to Corrientes, where he forwarded some cotton seed: he has not, however, no confidence in the speculation.

The Gran Chaco continues on our left as its savage grandeur, and the scenery is most picturesque: we have passed, except that the thickets have grown into forests, the trees lifting their massive branches to a great height: they are mostly very straight and covered with a dark green or light brown foliage. At intervals the sandy beach is strewn with driftwood and uprooted trunks. I am told this wood is highly useful for ship-building.

Six leagues above Esquina we pass Costa Tala, where the stream attains such an enormous width, that the current of deep water is almost lost, and the pilot is obliged to take to the bank and rest for soundings ahead of the vessel. We stop the steamer, for the line gives only 8 feet, and the Esmeralda draws seven. At length the pilot has found the channel, and steering close to John for a buoy on either side. At half-speed we pass the difficult point, and the dinner bell dispels all fear of running aground. I have before passed an eulogium on Captain Hunter's cook, and after a good dinner we discuss the merits of the sherry, which is first rate.

We pass two sailing vessels, one of which is 23 days out from Buenos Ayres. Some catphenes or sea hogs show themselves on the river-bank, disporting in the grass: there is also a gerbist of swans, and wild turkeys flit from branch to bough, especially that kind called dorado.

Higher up on our left, a short distance inland, are the ruins of two Jesuit missions, Concepcion and S. Jeronimo, the second near a stream called Arroyo del Rey. It is equally unaccountable and disgraceful that no attempts have been made in later times to fix colonies in these advantageous positions. On the right we see a number of flocks along the horizon, where the dwellers of the mainland are clearing off the bushwood and the tigers flee in dismay to the islands.

By daybreak we are in sight of Goya, where five schooners are at anchor, and a halfpast twice as expectable as that of Esquina stands on the edge of an island, acting both as Custom-house and landing place for passengers. We have a large cargo for this place and will have some delay. A large boat, canoes alongside with the agent Sor Perdrigi: the customs skiff also visits us. Meantime I will give my readers some information about the place, but the details are so important and lengthy that I will set them down under a separate heading.

EDITORIAL TABLE.

The coach from Dolores has not arrived for the last three weeks. The camps are very bad in that locality, and it is probable that there are not horses.

On yesterday the iron yard and its contents of one late Mr. Harkness, of Barracas, were sold by auction.

The juggler at the Mole draws crowds every night. He makes no charge for performing his tricks, but only sells his soap and tooth-ache powder. We understand that he sells from $300 to $400 worth per day. Yesterday evening he performed a most extraordinary trick, driving a whole pack of cards through the crown of his hat without breaking it, and making them fly over towards Mr. Llavello's house.

People should be cautious! We want to know what has become of Juan Cruz Ocampo. Since he went down to Montevideo we have lost sight of him. Several parties are at present employed in purchasing these vouchers at a shave of 60 to 65 per cent.

On Thursday next, the great estancia auction will come off at Remedios, Mr. Halback's estancia. The place has been cut up in lots to suit the convenience of buyers. Mr. Gowland is the auctioneer.

One of our colleagues seems never fatigued with the Northern Railway, and abusing the Company. In justice and fair play, we think it right to say something on behalf of this much abused road. On Sundays and feast days, notwithstanding the continuous running of trains, there is in the Retiro station accommodating all the passengers, simply because every one waits for the last train. As a necessary consequence, some seven or eight extra carriages are put on, and these become so crowded, both inside and out, that even two locomotives are scarcely able to draw them along. We have ourselves witnessed the same scenes, all of whom had returns tickets in their pockets, left behind at Howdy Park, and all this simply and purely because the train was full and could contain no more; and yet the news boys and the newspapers were not filled with complaints and attacks on the company. The Northern Railway is a new company; it had to contend with many difficulties in the outset, which all but annihilated it. We think the public should be less exacting and fastidious, if it would call attention, however, to the great amount of patience and urbanity amongst the station masters and other officials. Many complaints have come to our ears respecting the rudeness which both ladies and gentlemen too often experience at the hands of some of the company's servants. We can excuse everything save this. The engine may burst, or stop, but the station-master should be a gentleman.

SAD EPISODE.

We perceive a communication in the Tribuna from numerous residents in the town of Corrientes, asking for the conditional pardon of old Mr. Felix Alzaga, one of the principal actors in the fearful tragedy of 1828—the murder of Don Francisco Alvarez. Alzaga fled from the country at the time, although he had a brilliant position previously and has roamed over distant climes in poverty and disgrace. Thirty-five years have elapsed, separated from home, family, and friends—bereft of his high position in society and splendid prospects—he has probably suffered what few men have endured during that long interval.

Strictly speaking, he should die, for a crime like his can never be forgotten; but the malefactor is now an old man fast approaching the grave, and thirty-five years of intense suffering might well atone for the deed. His friends ask that he be allowed to terminate his days in the remote place where he has settled.

This crime is the principle "causa celebre" of Buenos Ayres; for who has not read the epitaph in the Recoleta—

"Don Francisco Alvarez
"Asesinado por sus amigos."

Strange to say, the other two assassins were executed on the day of the 1st of January, 1829, peace between Brazil and the Argentine Republic, but such was the state of public feeling that the Andalusian General Guido, was ordered to stop on board until the execution had taken place, so that nothing might impede the course of justice.

At the period in question, the case created the most intense excitement. The judge, who had the courage to condemn some of the very first men of this city and sentence them to be executed, was publicly serenaded by the people; his name was Cuenca. Many people have now elapsed since this Alvarez tragedy, but the letter in yesterday's 'Tribune' calls back to memory the event which we had hoped was buried in oblivion.

UNPLEASANT NEWS

It will, no doubt, be anything but gratifying to our readers to know that Mr. Flores has commenced his old system of being quizzed in this country, to a hanging extension. Several estancias on the coast of the River Uruguay are laid under embargo, by order of Flores, simply because the unfortunate owners are either in Montevideo or in the Government service.

Now, it is absolutely necessary that Orientals must fight or join with either party, as they will not be permitted to live quietly at home. The consequence is, that the steady, upright citizen, who joins with the legal Government of the country, is to be visited with confiscation therefore. We heard so much talked about the great liberality of Flores and his honourable conduct, as regards private property, that we almost thought that his generality filibuster would be the last man in the country to lend himself to the old gauchos order of things, but we are beginning to see that he is the same as all the rest.

The estancias of Pinilla Dunnico, and others are confiscated

God having any powers in matter? where He was concerned, and, with his hand upon his knife and looking at the blue sky, quietly observed that, if God and the saint who willed that child should die were present, he would instantly kill them, in order that they might not wish that any more of his children should die. "I was a scamp, I shall never forget, and I am sorry there are many more I have seen, though not quite so hateful as this. That is a powerful state for people to live in, but it is the solemn truth; and all, little as it is, that I have been able to write to you to-night, I myself have witnessed. Here there are no schools, except in the large towns, and those are never properly attended. Persons of rank in the army here cannot read or write. Often an old colonel of the district comes to me to have his official letters read and answered by myself; he comes to me because he says he can trust an Englishman, but he never trusts any other nation. This may be flattery on his part, but I know he has waited for me to read and answer his letters when he has had persons perfectly able to do the same staying at his own house. I must close my letter now, as it is very late, and this must leave here before day-light to-morrow in order to catch the river steamer. Some future day I will give you a more connected account of the miserable inhabitants of the neighbouring provinces, and I will say in the long winter evenings to write an account of the way the work of taming horses and managing cattle is carried on, as perhaps you may be able to retail it to the good folks at home in the shape of a little lecture.

In fairness we also extract a reply to the above, which was made in the same journal.

LIFE IN SOUTH AMERICA.

To the Editor of the Albion.

SIR—One word, if you please, with reference to the letter under the above heading, which appeared in your journal on last Monday's truth requires a pretty test against the wholesale defamation contained therein. "The hundreds of thousands of animals," the "Estancias," and "Incasing"... plainly indicate the locality in South America from whence this "sensation" letter was penned; and to repay the unbounded hospitality of a foreign nation in which our countrymen have realised, and are realizing immense fortunes, by a silent admission of its baseness and degradation, would be a disgrace and stigma on the national character of an Englishmen. The newspaper reports of our police and law courts teem with crime and immorality, but God forbid that these exceptional cases should from the rule or basis on which our character and reputation are judged at Montevideo, and particularly do Englishmen judge foreign nations and habits in that off-hand and plausible manner in which they themselves would be most indignant to be judged by others. A long and practical knowledge and experience of the country, alike in time of peace and time of war, warrants me in asserting that the character of the people and peasants (referred to in the letter in question) is noble, chivalrous, and generous to a degree that treachery and murder are seldom or ever heard of, except in drunken rows; that foreigners are not only unmolestedly respected and protected, but are so in fact, although too frequently they persist in mixing in local politics; that the governors of provinces are not "murderers and robbers," nor are their families "perhaps worse" (whatever that may be)but "state" in the back;" that the people here heard of the "seventh commandment," and perhaps practise it more than the "Old" does the 9th; and that "virtuous women" are at least as common in the "provinces" as our police sheets and local statistics show there to be wanting at home; that if "candles are burnt" at the bedside of a dying child, as warranted by the Catholic religion, there is more consistency in it than in English Protestants abroad attending theatres, races, balls, and public promenades on the Sabbath; that educated and uneducated men are found in and out of "places in that country, as well as in most others; and that if there are" no schools except in large towns, the inference is clear that the want of population in the immense plains renders their existence unnecessary. Boldly and truthfully I assert that, as a resident an Englishman, to make an enemy in the country referred to, must persevere in mixing himself up in local politics, or be overbearing in his temper or manner, full of assumption of superiority over those around him, a prototype of "quackery," supercilious, pugnacious, or a drunkard; making too free with those beneath him in station, and not treating others as he, in a similar position, would wish to be treated himself. I have travelled leagues both alone and with a handful of men, when the country was been covered with deserters, and have a right, from experience, to state that an Englishman who behaves himself worthily of his country is loved and respected by all classes, and often has it in his power to raise the character and "pluck" of his countrymen in the opinion of foreigners. These opinions and facts can be corroborated by numbers of residents in Liverpool and elsewhere. Your obliged and obedient servant,

Liverpool, 17th Oct., 1863. R. B.

Auction Emigration Scheme.

We read in the Entre Rios papers that a very important Emigration scheme is under consideration, which is supported by the Government and General Urquiza. The plan proposed is to start a company, the shares of which are to be held half by foreigners and half by natives. A large tract of land will be given gratis to the company. Agents are to be appointed in the different European ports, and a free passage tendered to all who wish to emigrate to Entre Rios. We have not heard whether it is in the programme of the company to get up lectures. The leading men of Entre Rios have promised to subscribe for the stock. It is said that a German gentleman is the initiator of the scheme.

Governor Urquiza tells every one that all he wants in Entre Rios is population and peace, and that as long as he has a voice in the Government of the country, these two great necessities shall never be lost sight of.

We earnestly trust that this company will succeed, and prosper. Twenty-five thousand families in Entre Rios would be one of the greatest boons to that province, and in fact to the whole nation.

THE BOLSA.

Dec. 4.

Patacones went up, and paper money down to-day. The Libertad was the cause of all this. Every man who entered the Bolsa to-day "winked," the broken knew the sign, and the ride kept rising.

Patacones opened at 27 80, and closed at 27 85; 4 currencies are over 4454. Total sales, 130,871.

Through the kindness of an influential subscriber, we were able to forward to our agent in Montevideo the papers for our subscribers, and a private letter with all the news.

The conviction on the Bolsa is that Marmol has acted most improperly in ordering the captain of the Libertad to sail when the Government said "stop."

ENGLISH GRAMMAR SCHOOL,
CALLE LARGA DE BARRACAS
Por.—Mr. Pougerard, of the London University College.

This Establishment, which from its foundation has been patronised by the principal British families of Buenos Ayres, is in exact reproduction of an English School, where a complete education can be combined with the acquisition of the French and Spanish languages is imparted to the pupils, and based upon the system as in all first class European institutions of the kind.

An ever-watchful and constant supervision, and a strict maintenance of order and propriety, are a sufficient guarantee that the interests and welfare of the pupils are carefully attended to.

The different branches taught in the English Grammar School comprise the English, French and Spanish languages. History, Geography, Arithmetic, and Book-keeping in all its parts, Writing, and Religious Instruction.

Extra branches, such as Latin, Mathematics, Geometry, Art and Drawing, are also taught by special masters.

The situation of the English Grammar School, in one of the most delightful Quintas of the Calle Larga de Barracas, at the very gates of the city, is one of the most healthful and picturesque of the environs of Buenos Ayres.

SAVINGS BANK.

BANK MAUA & C°.

— No. 103 calle de Cangallo. —

BUENOS-AYRES.

The immense advantages of Accounts Current are now so generally felt, and appreciated in the two great emporiums of the River Plate—Montevideo & Buenos Ayres—that there are very few Merchants who fail to keep one at the Bank in which they place the most confidence

The Bank of Mauá & Co. in Montevideo has already provided for the working class in that city, a safe & profitable depositary for their savings.

To sums deposited in that most important institution are daily increasing and already reach a very large amount.

These advantages have not hitherto been enjoyed in this city by an immense number of Clerks, artizans, workingmen & servants of all classes & conditions, who are equally interested in putting their savings out at interest, thus providing themselves with a reserve fund in case of sick, sickness or old age, instead of spending them in the immoral gambling, in lotteries and other trifles.

The Bank of Mauá and Co. of this city following the example of their firm in Montevideo now offer the same facilities in this city and will open on the 1st October a "Savings Bank" at No. 103 calle Cangallo from 9 a. m. to 3 p. m. on week days and on Sundays and holidays from 10 a. m. to 12 m. for the reception of the savings of the classes already mentioned.

The Bank will deliver to each depositor a Pass Book in which will be entered the amount deposited and withdrawn.

The depositor is permitted at any time to withdraw the whole or part of the sum deposited, in the former case the interest will be calculated up to date.

The Bank of Mauá and Co. is sufficiently known to the public by the benefit derived from the course of its operations which are regulated on the strictest and soundest principles and always directed to promote the general welfare.

The Bank of Mauá and Co. are also persuaded that this new branch of their business will render immense service to the working classes of Buenos Ayres and its neighbourhood.

Buenos Ayres September 19th 1863.

WILLIAM LESLIE.

CONDITIONS.

1st. The Bank receives at interest any sum from Twenty five dollars currency or one silver dollar upwards.

2nd. The interest allowed is six per cent [6 p$] per annum which is liquidated every six months.

3rd. The depositor can at any time withdraw the whole or part of the money deposited.

4th. Once the amount deposited exceeds Twenty five thousand dollars currency or one thousand dollars silver the depositor if he wishes can open an account current according to the rules established by the Bank.

5th. In case the depositor loses his Pass Book it can be replaced by another on paying twelve dollars currency, and advertising the loss in the public newspapers.

It can now be applied to such effect as after shearing, when it not only cures the worst cases, but acts as a preservative against the disease.

The simplest method is bathing the animal, whether sound or affected, in the manner prescribed by the instructions.

The Specific has been already found an efficient remedy for Insects (Garrapatas).

Numerous certificates may be seen, showing the high repute of the Specific throughout S. America. Its low price places it within the reach of all. Still, sufficing for 800 or 1000 Sheep. It contains no poisonous quality, and is sold at the above Depots.

Great and Useful Invention.

No more Mortality for want of Water.

Sure wealth to Estancieros

By the Robert Apparatus,

Being notorious the immense injury occasioned by the scarcity of water during the long seasons that afflicts the camps of Buenos Ayres, I have determined to dedicate to the Estancieros an Apparatus at once simple and infallible for procuring as much water as they may require.

120 Barrels (as per hour (it seems fabulous) is procured with my apparatus, without fear of at any time its getting out of order.

This machine is worked by one horse, and in one day's work can give 1400 Barrels—that is to say, sufficient water for 1000 head of cattle.

By these figures can be calculated the immense advantages gained by its use.

Another advantage is the facility of putting it together, and taking it to pieces, so as to be able to transport it to any place where it may be necessary to use it, either for watering purposes, or others.

GREAT MODIFICATION.

I have made an improvement in my Apparatus, applying a new system, which reduces the necessary force two-thirds, giving it at the same time more rapidity.

Those interested can see it at Calle Moreno, No. 816 (Hueracado, Paris).

One sole inspection of the Apparatus will convince them the superiority of it over any other. ROBERT.
